Catalog of Bird Specimens
Southwestern Museum of Natural History

by David M. Niles

This list presents data pertaining to locality, date of collection and, where available, the sex of all bird specimens (with the exceptions noted below) from the State of New Mexico preserved in the University of New Mexico Collection of Vertebrates at Albuquerque. It is hoped that the information presented here may prove useful to those persons engaged in future studies of New Mexican avifauna.

On January 15, 1963, the University of New Mexico Collection of Vertebrates contained 1009 New Mexican bird specimens comprising 252 species and one hybrid. In addition the collection contains some skeletal material, a small number of non-New Mexican specimens and most of the bird collection of the late J. Stokley Ligon. Because of the lack of personnel competent to substantiate the identification of the bird skeletons, none of this material was included in the following list.

As originally conceived it was hoped that this list would provide a vehicle for the publication, as a group, of all the data from the Ligon collection. In the process of cataloguing his specimens, however, an attempt was made to compare data on the specimen tag of each bird with the data contained in Ligon's original personal catalog, where such existed. Approximately one-half of his specimens were checked in this manner and a number of cases were noted where data on the tag differed from that presented in Ligon's catalog for the same specimen. For example: J.S.L. (J. Stokley Ligon), 772, a white-throated sparrow was collected, according to information on the specimen tag, at Cimarron, New Mexico, on Oct. 15, 1922. In his catalog Ligon lists 772 as being a white-throated sparrow from 9 mi. W. Washington, D.C., collected April 25, 1920. Forty-eight examples of a similar nature were found. Thus, with a great deal of reluctance, it was concluded that enough doubt existed concerning the validity of Ligon's data to preclude its inclusion in this list.

In the following list the nomenclature follows the A.O.U. Check List (5th ed., 1957). Within a species, specimens are listed by county from the northwesternmost to the southeasternmost; within a county, arrangement is numerically by University of New Mexico accession number. Letters following numbers of specimens from each locality indicate sex as follows: m, male; f, female; u, sex undetermined.

I am indebted to Roxie C. Layborn who identified the Empidonax flycatchers and confirmed the identification of the Crested Flycatchers, the Yellow-crowned Night Heron and the Ross' Goose.
